Don't Bite the Sun is a 1976 science fiction novel by Tanith Lee set in a utopian world which the main character comes to reject. The main character and her friends are wild, crazy "Jang" teenagers whose lifestyle is full of reckless behaviour, promiscuous sex, repeated suicide (on dying they are reborn), and a constant search for thrills.

Don't Bite the Sun - Wikipedia

biting the sun tanith lee

Biting the Sun by Tanith Lee is a fantastic book. It was very strange at the start when everyone was committing suicide and then making a new body and continuing on as if nothing happened. The world is set in the distant future and people live in domes called either Four BOO, Four BEE, or Four BAA. the rest of the world is a desert.

Don't Bite the Sun by Tanith Lee A body change seemed to be in order, and a sex change as well. Above the bikini babe on my copy of DAW UE1486, Don't Bite the Sun, is Marion Zimmer Bradley's assessment of this 1976 novel by Tanith Lee: "Probably the finest book you have ever published." Talk about effusive praise!

Biting the Sun is an omnibus containing both of Tanith Lee's Four BEE novels, Don't Bite the Sun and Drinking Sapphire Wine, originally published in the 1970s. These two short science fiction books work best as a single volume: the first introduces the world and explores the main protagonist's struggles with finding meaning within its confines, and the second has more forward momentum and ...
